Shipping Notes.

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

The J. A. Cummins sails for Koolau ports at 7 p. m. today.

The Mauna Loa sailed on her regular run yesterday at noon.

The steamer Nihau will sail for Kailua and Punaluu at noon today.

The German bark Klampen is now out 172 days from Bremen for this port. The American ship Dirigo, Captain Colly, is due at this port from Newcastle with a cargo of coal for Castle & Cooke.

The steamer Iwalani lost her rudder on her last trip to Hawaii, and narrowly escaped being reached at Punaluu. Captain Mosher rigged a jury rudder and reached this port in safety.

BAD MAN GETS ONLY ONE MONTH

Ah Loy, the Chinese who was released a few days ago after serving a twenty years' sentence, was sent to jail for thirty days by Judge Dickey yesterday. Ah Loy was accused of attempting to rob a Chinese house. The man of the house happened to be home and heard some one prowling about on the back room. Pretty soon he heard a drill being worked in the neighborhood of the key hole. He had a revolver in his hand and let drive through the key hole, but failed to land the burglar. When he went out Ah Loy was still on the porch and was then promptly turned over to the police.

Levi Daniel, the young man who robbed a native woman, but said he didn't spend his booty foolishly on a "whine," was committed by Judge Dickey to the Circuit Court.

John Gomes was sentenced to reform school for six years. He escaped from that place over a year ago and has eluded the police since that time.

Ed. Fraga and Kapiko, two boys who escaped recently from the reform school, were sent to jail for two months each.

THE QUEEN IS PRESIDENT

Yesterday afternoon a meeting was held in the St. Andrew's Cathedral Sunday school room for the purpose of organizing a Woman's Guild in connection with the Hawaiian congregation. The name of the new society is the "Abahui Iolani o na Wahine Hawaii." A most successful and helpful meeting was held and the following officers were elected:

President, Queen Liliuokalani; 1st vice-president, Princess Kalaianalea; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. M. Keohokale; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. E. K. Naalelua; treasurer, Mrs. Helen Boyd; secretary, Mrs. H. Evans.

The first regular meeting of the Guild will be held next Tuesday at 3 p. m. and it is hoped that all those invited to yesterday's meeting as well as all other Hawaiian church women will attend.

Senator Hanna Writes.

Senator Mark Hanna has replied to the letter of inquiry from Senator Clarence Crabbe, chairman of the Republican Territorial Committee, regarding Hawaii's representation in the Republican National Convention. It is of exactly the same tenor as the information received by C. R. Buckland from Senator Hanna's secretary and published in the Advertiser last week. That is, that it is impossible to tell what will be done until the National Committee meets, but no change is anticipated from the representation in last convention.

FIGHT AGAINST THE MOSQUITO

The recent wet weather on the Atlantic coast has vastly increased the possible breeding-grounds for the mosquito, and the result has been an unusual development of that annoying pest, amounting in places to what the newspapers call a "scourge." In spite of this, entomologists are quite certain that mosquitoes can be practically exterminated in localities that possess the two requisites of patience and money. How this may be done is explained briefly by Dr. F. J. Otis in Good Health (July). Says this writer:

"Mosquitoes live and multiply where there is an abundance of water, and subsist upon the juices of plants. The female has a very strong beak, so she can penetrate the firmer plant structure in search of food; but the male has not so strong a beak, and so subsists on the more juicy plants."

"The female lays her eggs on the surface of quiet or stagnant water, in little rafts composed of the cigar-shaped eggs standing on end. The general color is a light gray or almost white on the upper side, while if they are observed from the lower side, they are of a silvery appearance. The raft is concave above and convex below, so that it is really a miniature boat. The eggs float about on the water for but a few hours, a day or two at the longest, when they hatch, producing little larvae. These vary somewhat according to the different kinds of mosquitoes, but they are really not water-insects in the strict sense, for they have a breathing-apparatus, and can not live below the surface for more than ten or fifteen minutes."

"The most of their food is obtained at the surface. They lie there with their breathing-tubes just above the surface of the water, and manipulate the little cilia about their mouths in such a way that a current of water is brought past the mouth, which brings to them little insects and particles of foods that are floating upon the surface."

"It is in this stage of the mosquito's life that the scientist takes charge of the little fellow to destroy him and the future generations. If kerosene or some oily material is poured on the surface of the water, it can be readily seen that these little fellows will thrust their breathing-tubes up into the oil, and get oil instead of air. It also destroys their food-supply, as the little particles of food will float on the oil instead of water, so that they can neither eat nor breathe, and must die. It takes a very small quantity of oil to accomplish this."

In the pupa form, which is the mosquito's next stage of existence, the insects, instead of living in the water and breathing through the air-tube near the tail, have two tubes like ears extending from the side of the head, so that when they are close to the surface these tubes project into the air above. In this form the insect generally remains near the surface, but has a powerful tail by which it can lower itself to the bottom of the pond. Here again, we are told, oil may be used to destroy the insects. After only a few days in this form, the mosquito is liberated to seek his home among the leaves of the swamp vegetation. To quote again:

"Mosquitoes do not travel very far. They live and die within a half-mile of their birthplace, unless some very strong wind carries them away or they get entrapped in some cargo and are thus removed to other parts."

"It has been difficult for scientists to fully appreciate this fact, as many localities far removed from water had so many mosquitoes; but careful investigation has shown that mosquitoes multiply very rapidly in cans containing water, and in little pools that have formed in the tracks of domestic animals about the barnyard and in similar places. Whenever freshly broken ground is left rough, so that these pools form more readily than before, mosquitoes are noticed to increase very greatly in numbers. Under these circumstances, they seem to go through the various forms so very rapidly that a vessel that will hold water for from twenty-four to forty-eight hours will make the multiplication of mosquitoes possible, and as one mosquito will lay from two to four hundred eggs it can be readily seen that in the course of three or four days we could have from three to four hundred times as many mosquitoes about the locality as existed previously."

"To rid ourselves of these little nuisances, all that is necessary is to see that all these cans are upturned, the little low places are filled up, and that no water remains in the caves, troughs or rain-barrels about the premises. If these conditions can be controlled within three hundred yards of our premises, we can practically control mosquitoes about our homes."

"During the winters, the pupae form goes into the pitcher-plants and into protected places in the grass of the swamps where it may be frozen up completely, but in the spring they thaw out and continue their life uninjured. The adult mosquitoes that are overtaken by the cold weather seek shelter beneath stone bridges, in cellars of houses, always where there is some water, as the adult mosquito can not live more than a day or so without a good drink. In the dry seasons, the mosquito race is perpetuated entirely by the adult female. The larva and pupa forms dry up and die. The plants get old and hard, and the male can no longer obtain his food from them and so dies; but the female having a stronger beak can penetrate the firmer plants, and still obtain her living. As the season becomes drier, she goes into a state suggesting hibernation, and remains quiet in some locality where she can get moisture, staying until the rain comes or water may be found again, when she deposits eggs and the locality is soon as well stocked with the insects as formerly."—Literary Digest.
